A Light Has Dawned Upon Them

In the throes of agony, Jesus called out “Father, if you are willing, take this cup from me; yet not my will, but yours be done...” (Luke 22:42) The temple guards came to arrest him with Judas leading the way. Jesus spoke to his captors, “This is your hour – when darkness reigns.” From this moment until His death, the powers of darkness ruled the hearts of the men focused on killing Jesus. Religious leaders schemed, Roman soldiers administered cruel beatings, Pilate and Herod conspired, the crowds yelled “crucify him,” greed gripped Judas’ heart, Jesus’ disciples fled in fear, and Peter denied the Lord he loved. Jesus went into the heart of the sinfulness of men and demonic darkness bearing the full brunt of wrath, hatred, and lust for power.

A few hours later, as Jesus hung on the Cross, darkness covered Jerusalem, an earthquake shook the earth, and the veil of the temple was torn from top to bottom. A centurion, administering Jesus’ crucifixion, had a front row seat to the cruel barrage of injustice Jesus suffered. He heard Jesus tell the thief, “Today you will be with me in Paradise.” He watched Jesus commend His spirit into the Father’s hands and breathe his last breath. In the darkest hour, the remarkable happened. A light of revelation broke through and the centurion exclaimed, “Surely this was a righteous man!”

Jesus broke the power of demonic darkness forever. The prophet Isaiah proclaimed, “The people walking in darkness have seen a great light; on those living in the land of deep darkness a light has dawned.” (Isaiah 9:2) This is what the incarnation was always about. This is good news. And God’s people are all called to join.

We, as followers of Jesus, have a mandate to carry the love of God to those who live where “darkness reigns.” These are the edges of the Kingdom where Jesus, the light of the world, has not been proclaimed – where the church is not. Together we can blaze access to these places, but it takes all of us working together. Even now, we are starting to see regions that were once dead coming to life.

During this Easter season, we shout from the mountain tops – our God reigns!

Serving together,

EDWARD JESUDHAS

Celebrating the life that started a movement

There I found myself, at the Delhi National Hospital morgue in India, mourning the death of my dear friend Edward. Edward was a man of God in every sense. This past

December, God brought him home suddenly at the age of 42. This is the story of Edward Jesudhas, profound missionary and my personal friend. A few of the moving testimonies I learned about Edward before I preached to Edward’s congregation after his passing:

“He led me to the Lord and counseled our family.”

“The day he prayed for me to get a job, I got the job!” “God used Edward to pray for many people.

He surprised me one day by saying, ‘God will use you to pray for others and see them touched by God as well.’”

“Edward came to our poor slum and began to tell us about the One True God. No Christian had ever visited us before.”

I was in India, one country amongst many ministry sites I was visiting in Asia, away from my home in Mexico.

Edward strived each day to make an impact – in his family, his communities, and ultimately in this world. He devoted his life to the mission field, serving in North India seeking to reach a people group who previously had no access to the Gospel.

This past December, God brought Edward home suddenly at the age of 42. This is the story of Edward Jesudhas, profound missionary and my personal friend.

“God used Edward to pray for many people. He surprised me one day by saying, ‘God will use you to pray for others and see them touched by God as well.’”

I had plans to see Edward just hours before tragedy struck – excited to sit with my friend and discuss the happenings of his ministry.

Edward strived each day to make an impact – in his family, his communities, and ultimately in this world. He devoted his life to the mission field, serving in North India seeking to reach a people group who previously had no access to the Gospel.

AN UNEXPECTED LOSS

The day Edward passed he traveled with a ministry partner to visit sites among the “low caste” Chamar people group in the Rohini area of Delhi, India. He walked through a slum area where they teach young Chamar girls to sew, shared time with a number of locals he had helped lead to the Lord, and paid a visit to the missions school that he started just one year prior.

On this same day, I was teaching in a missions’ school just outside of Delhi. My wife and I were scheduled to visit and teach at Edward’s newly formed missionary training school and his church over the upcoming weekend. Hours before he passed, I received a text from Edward that read, “Where are you, my friend? You are very silent.” I quickly replied that we were in transit to his part of the city, and were looking forward to being with him the next day.

Upon returning home from his work, with his wife at his side, Edward had a major heart attack. There was nothing that could be done to save him. He was gone in minutes.

AN UNFORGETTABLE IMPACT

My friend Edward was a pastor, missions mobilizer, PhD candidate, and ministry partner. We worked together in the GlobeServe network of missionary training schools; our goal through GlobeServe being to establish churches among 500 unreached people groups over just a few years.

Edward targeted a number of unreached, “untouchable caste” people groups in the Delhi area. In fact, his doctoral thesis was set to cover the Chamar people. The Chamar number over 51 million in India. Only 0.5% of these 51 million are born-again believers. God used Edward to start a movement among the Chamar people.

It was my honor to be at his home when he first planted a church in the cramped living room of his apartment on the northside of the bustling Delhi metropolis. Just one year later, I was in the same apartment, only to find 70 people tightly packed and worshipping Jesus.

BUILDING ON EDWARD’S LEGACY

Within two hours of his passing, at about 11pm at night, more than 1,000 people showed up to mourn Edward and console his family. The following day, about 300 of us gathered together for an informal home-going to honor a man who fought the good fight, who finished the race, who is now home with Jesus. Edward’s life and legacy shine like a beacon.

Two years have passed since Edward began his work among the Chamar people. Over this time his congregation and missions school have moved to a larger facility. But Edward lived understanding how much work had yet to be done. He had planned to give his life to this cause, and those now in leadership roles here strive to keep building, sharing, and giving.

Edward wasn’t just a minister. He was a husband to his wife, Hersia, and a father of two children in their teen years, Allan and Edwin. Even in the midst of processing their loss, Hersia and Edward’s ministry partners have taken up Edward’s ministry to build on the church and missions school.

It is my opinion, as well as everyone else who knew him, that Edward had too few years on this earth; he had so much left to give and accomplish. But in God’s great wisdom and sovereignty, I recognize our loss is heaven’s gain. As I sought to console Edward’s son, Allan, shortly after his father’s passing he made a remarkable statement, “Here in India, my dad accomplished more in two years than many could in 70 years.”

Allan is right. Edward lived with eternity in mind. He set forth every day – in a region where many efforts are made to keep the light of the Lord away – to bring the God’s kingdom to unreached peoples. Edward, my friend, you are an inspiration.

You introduced hundreds to the redemption found through Christ and gave your life to the most important cause. We will strive every day to build on your legacy, through India and beyond.

Bringing Life to Lifeless Places

A DECISION THAT FOREVER CHANGED THE DIRECTION OF MY FAMILY'S LIFE AND MINISTRY AND THAT OF MANY OTHERS.

In 2012, I was given an offer that would forever change the direction of my family's life and ministry. I was asked to consider the role of International Director of Bethany Gateways – Bethany International's sending agency. At that point, we had been living in Africa for 13 years with no intention of leaving any time soon. Saying yes would mean re-locating to the US and providing strategic oversight to our mission force around the world.

A DREAM OF THE FUTURE
The night I was offered the job, the Lord gave me a very powerful dream. I was in the presence of three American men, when suddenly standing beside us were four men of a given ethnicity. They were standing absolutely motionless and expressionless - they almost looked lifeless. Within a short time, this group of four seemingly hollow men became a group of about 15 men and women, bursting with praise and worship to the Lord. As I woke up, the Lord said to me, “If you do this thing, life will be brought to otherwise lifeless places.”

“At that point, we had been living in Africa for 13 years with no intention of leaving...”

The Lord said to me, “If you do this thing, life will be brought to otherwise lifeless places.”

A little over two years later, I was the International Director and my family and I were living in the US. Throughout my time as International Director, that phrase “...life will be brought to otherwise lifeless places” continued to echo through my memory as a promise to my family that such a major change would be worth it. In fact, one of my daughters even painted a picture that hangs in my office with that phrase on it.

STREAMS IN THE DESERT

It is now 2019, and I am writing this article from SE Asia. Our team here was involved with a small Buddhist village, in an area with close to no Christian witness of any kind; however, they discovered a tiny struggling church in this village. They befriended the pastor and church members, and became one of them. Through their interactions and encouragement, the pastor began to lead his people in outreach to the rest of the village. The church took on a new sense of urgency to be a light in an otherwise dark village.

In a public school classroom across the country, the class rose to do their morning ritual Buddhist chants. A six-year boy stood up, and with confidence told his teacher, “I will stand with you, but I won't chant. I am now a Christian.” His mother abandoned her life of prostitution and came to the Lord through the faithful ministry and discipleship of one of our missionaries and global partners. She now serves the Lord and is teaching her son to stand for truth.

In another part of Asia, one of our missionaries, together with BGU interns and global partners, have been serving in a Muslim village. Months ago, while interactions were very positive, there was no indication that anyone was interested in anything beyond education. Just last week, things turned a corner: two women and their whole families came to the Lord. One of the ladies shared with a missionary, “I now pray to Jesus, but please, come and teach me how to pray. I don't know how, but all day I say, “Thank you, Jesus. I love you, Jesus.”

Across the ocean in Africa, recently one of our missionary families was able to baptize nine Muslims who came to faith in Jesus. In the same region, another one of our missionary families had been serving for eight years in a Muslim village, and had yet to see anyone interested in hearing about the message of Jesus. Some trained African missionaries came to join them in the village for a month and, within two weeks, they started two Bible studies started among Muslims. The African missionaries came to our Bethany missionary and said, “We have found that YOU are the person of peace in this village. Because of your faithful service, and because the people in the village know we are connected to you, we had the freedom to begin these Bible studies. But, it is only because of your faithful service over these many years.”

Life is being brought to otherwise lifeless places because faithful men and women are willing to go to the hard places, sacrifice, and let their lives shine forth in the darkness. Please pray for our missionaries and partners across the globe who are serving in very difficult regions and circumstances, all with the purpose to bring life to the lifeless.

LIFE at the Edge OF GOD'S KINGDOM

Marseille, France: Europe's Gateway to North Africa

Marseille provides a critical access point to several North African people groups who would otherwise be extremely challenging for Christians to reach - including the Algerian Mozabite Berbers who have no known Christians among them.

We are reaching out to secular (anti-religious) French nationals as well as Muslim immigrants in Marseille. One example of breakthrough comes from Mayra - a BGU senior who just returned from her 16 month internship. She developed a relationship with an Algerian Muslim family befriending their daughter Fatima. Through Mayra's encouragement, Fatima attended a Christian church with her for the first time. Fatima experienced God's love and continues to pursue further understanding of Christianity.

East Africa: Ethnic Somali Villages

Somalia is 99.6% unreached and is in a state of crisis due to famine and violence. Kenya, which neighbors Somalia, has an estimated 2.3 million ethnic Somalis and 400,000 Somali refugees.

Our Bethany team, partnering with various other missionaries, is working with unreached Muslim ethnic groups including Somalis living in Kenya. Jason and his team are equipping church planters and, in turn, Muslim villages, with sustainable farming techniques in a climate prone to drought. They have witnessed amazing results thus far- both in farming and Muslims opening their hearts to know more about Jesus. In the last month, church planters started two Discovery Bible studies with Muslims and all those attending have their own Bible.

India: The Chamar People

The 'low caste' Chamar number over 51 million in India. Only 0.5% of these 51 million are born-again believers. To be in the low caste is often regarded as "untouchable" or "undesirable", with unemployment and illiteracy being widespread.

We have focused on engaging and bringing the hope of Jesus to the Chamar people. Edward Jesudhas, our local partner, began reaching out to the Chamar. Edward moved his family to northern Delhi, started a church in his home, and grew his church to over 70 people in the first year. He also established a missionary training school to equip Indian missionaries to reach their native people. Today, his congregation, mission training school, and the number of workers among the Chamar have grown.

New Delhi: Hindu and Muslim Communities

India has more unreached people groups than any other country in the world, with a staggering 2,291 unreached groups. The capital city, New Delhi, alone has 441 unreached people groups.

Through multiple missional efforts in New Delhi we provide education to children and their mothers who have no access to it including English and sewing classes.

The Kingdom of Bhutan: The Bumthangpa People

Nestled in South Asia's Eastern Himalayas, the Kingdom of Bhutan has deep roots in the main religion: Buddhism. Thinley, a "Buddhist Monk Turned Missionary", is reaching the Bhutanese unreached peoples. Thinley and his wife are establishing a church in a village with 4,500 Bumthangpa people. The Bumthangpa number 24,000 people and are only 0.59% Christian.

Buddhist Thailand

The Thai people are a profoundly unreached people group. There are many smaller tribal people groups through Thailand as well. Many small Buddhist villages have virtually no Christian witness of any kind. And those Christian churches in the region often do not reach out to the Thai people. Our Bethany team befriended a local pastor. Through their interactions and encouragement, the pastor began to lead his people in outreach to the village. The church took on a new sense of urgency to be a light in an otherwise dark village.

Kasey spent the majority of her 16-month global internship with BGU in India teaching English to Muslim and Hindu children.

My Internship in India A Surprise of Salvation

Did you know? In 2019, Open Doors “Watch List” rated India as the tenth most dangerous country in the world to be a Christian.

In March 2017, Prime Minister Narendra Modi began rejecting major child assistance from organizations that didn’t align with India’s Hindu ideological standards. Miraculously, despite this, I was still able to serve with Bethany International’s team in India for my global internship.

I spent the majority of my time in India teaching the English language to Muslim and Hindu children within an informal school. These children were from a poverty-stricken village, with most families unable to afford the school uniform required by formal India schools.

The school hosts about 80 children ranging from ages 2-12. In addition to teaching these students, while the children attended class, we provided sewing and English language classes for their mothers – seeking to teach while also ministering in a country so closed off from the Gospel.

This was my first time in a role like this. I barely spoke the Hindi language. Our team did the best we could to learn Hindi, and to create a curriculum that would teach both English and share the Gospel to our students and their families.

Most of the children had never attended school; they didn’t understand classroom etiquette or proper behavior. Once, a student physically grabbed my ear to get my attention. Another threw grasshoppers at us as a joke. At the beginning, it was challenging, but over time, they grew to respect us. More importantly, they began to show interest in Jesus.

We taught stories from the Bible, and the children enjoyed acting them out. Afterwards, asking what they learned, to our amazement they would regularly recite the stories back to us. Over the course of 10 months, we saw a transformation of not only our students’ behavior but signs that these Bible stories were touching their hearts.

On my last day at the school, my students led me blindfolded to our classroom. When I opened my eyes, there was a giant red ribbon hanging at the front of our classroom. The room as a whole was covered in streamers and balloons.

As a thank you, these children planned a surprise going away for me entirely on their own. I came to India to share the Gospel, and believe we accomplished this in many ways. At first I didn’t know what to expect, but I was amazed to see all that God did in these children.

About month after I returned home, I received a surprise incomparable to any others. Two families from our school made the decision to give their lives to Christ. Never underestimate the power of God, even in the spiritually darkest places on earth. I believe in my heart that the salvation of these families will serve as a catalyst to even greater accomplishments for the Kingdom of God.

Kasey Norman – BGU senior, just returned from her 16-month internship in India. Next year she plans to start the BGU Graduate Program.

We saw a transformation of not only our students’ behavior but signs that these Bible stories were touching their hearts.

Eternal INVESTMENTS

“WE ARE CONVINCED THAT BETHANY IS IN ALIGNMENT WITH GOD’S DIRECTION TO TAKE THE CHURCH TO WHERE IT’S NOT, AND WE DESIRE TO PARTNER WITH THEM TO SEE THAT ACCOMPLISHED.”

John and Michelle have a meaningful history of impact at Bethany International (BI). At a young age, John and Michelle shared a heart for missions that eventually brought them together. John’s parents were missionaries in the early days of Bethany serving the Lord in locations including Guinea Bissau, Vietnam, Timor, and Ghana. His family eventually returned to the United States and became members of Bethany Church where John and Michelle met.

John and Michelle were inspired, independent of each other, to attend what is now Bethany Global University. During their time as students, they both felt called to support global missions through financial contributions. Upon graduation, they continued their education at North Dakota State University receiving degrees in Computer Science (John) and Business (Michelle).

Years later, John and Michelle went on the mission field serving the Bethany Philippines team for two years. “John and Michelle played a vital role at a time of rapidly expanding ministry,” shares Tim Freeman the Executive Vice President of BI. Using their invaluable technology and administration skills, John and Michelle established a business foundation and supported Church planting endeavors.

PARTNERING WITH GOD’S PURPOSES Firmly believing that Bethany is united with God’s purposes, John and Michelle have invested their time, talent, and financial support. In addition to their financial contributions, they have included Bethany in their Estate Plan. “We are excited to see numbers of Muslims coming to Christ through the work of Bethany and their partners. Bethany is on the cutting edge of missions,” share John and Michelle.

Buddhist Monk Turned Missionary

Transformed by a Vision and God's Word

Did you know? Buddhist monks often join the monastery between six to nine years old.

Sonam was born and raised in the Kingdom of Bhutan, a landlocked country in South Asia. Surrounded by the awe-inspiring Himalayas, Bhutan has 74 distinct people groups – 71 of which are 0% Evangelical Christian.

At the age of 12, Sonam began his journey toward becoming a Buddhist monk. For the next 7 years, like many in his culture, Sonam dedicated his life to studying the ways of Buddha.

Then God intervened.

YOU WILL SEEK ME AND FIND ME
Sonam was always seeking spiritual truth, and yet Sonam's heart and mind felt a pull that there was something more. One day, after a six-month period of meditation, Sonam experienced a vision. In this vision, a man robed in white revealed:

"I am the answer to your questions."

Sonam remained a Buddhist after this vision, but a seed had been planted. Later on, while serving in Nepal as a monk, a Christian shop owner gave him a gospel tract titled, "The Way to Salvation". Another monk demanded he throw away the tract, and that he refuse to read it. Sonam kept the tract. He studied it for several days. Not unlike his vision, John 14:6 spoke to Sonam's spirit:

"I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me."

Relocated to a Buddhist monastery in India, on the border of Bhutan, Sonam met yet another Christian who invited him to learn more about Jesus by attending a church service. For the first time, Sonam attended a Christian church. Here, he was given a Bible. As Sonam read the Word of God, Jesus' words penetrated his soul even further. In particular, Matthew 10:33:

In this vision, a man robed in white revealed: "I am the answer to your questions."

"But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven."

Within the confines of his modest monastery room, Sonam pored over the Bible almost non-stop. Then one day the inevitable happened. Sonam was caught and subsequently kicked out of the monastery.

I AM THE ANSWER

Shortly after his banishment, Sonam attended a Christian Youth Camp. He was baptized. He committed himself to a "home" church. He even enrolled in a five-year Bible school program.

A devout Buddhist monk hungered for the Truth. In the most unimaginable place, a Buddhist monastery, he found Jesus. He dedicated his life to Christ and in turn realized Bhutan's dire need for the Gospel. Upon graduation, Sonam returned to Bhutan where he met his future wife, Tham – a Christian and Bible school graduate. Today, they are missionaries.

Sonam and Tham have two young children. Together, they have a passion to "reach the unreached" people of their country. One year ago, after prayer and preparation, Sonam and Tham relocated to the northeastern region of Bhutan – a profoundly unreached region, only 0.59% Christian– where they are currently ministering and seeking to establish the region's first church.

As we at Bethany International strive to take the gospel to the most "unlikely" places and support our partners like Sonam and Tham – please pray for their journey and consider how you might be able to help them and others like them to make a difference.

Kerry A. Olson – Bethany International's Research Coordinator for the Engage500 Initiative.

FOUR PHASES OF FRUITFULNESS IN THE DESERT

Stories from missionaries serving at all stages of life and ministry.

As Jason and I walked to the center of the farm, I could feel the temperature drop several degrees due to the lushness of the vegetation around. Located in the desert of northern Kenya, this land was not always like this. In fact, when we selected it for the farm site, it was barren, dry, and sandy like the land that still surrounds it. Now, the daily harvest of fruits and vegetables is nothing short of astounding in comparison.

In my current role as International Director, I have had the pleasure of visiting all of our Bethany Gateways ministry locations multiple times. Over the years, I have witnessed spiritual wastelands worldwide transformed before my very eyes! I want to share four sites that exemplify each phase of fruitfulness that can be found on the mission field.

1. FOUNDATIONS: LAYING THE GROUNDWORK OF TRUST WITH PEOPLE.

I think of Corey and our team in Southeast Asia. He and his young family have been full-time on the field for about six years. Corey has stepped up into leadership, developing a healthy team, which has a strong focus on engaging unreached tribes. At the same time, he is working alongside our national partners, mentoring Bethany Global Interns, and exploring further opportunities to send more workers to tribes currently untouched by the Gospel.

2. FAVOR: RELATIONSHIPS BEGIN TAKING ROOT

Jason with his wife, Bekah, and their four beautiful daughters come to mind. They are growing in experience, favor, and influence. It is truly remarkable. During my recent visit to Kenya, I watched Jason (Bethany Gateways' current Field Leader) interact with Muslims working on the farm, Kenyan partners who are reaching local Muslim people, missionaries from Asia who have joined Jason's team, Bethany Global University Interns, and other missionaries.

Just as I recall the farm when it was just arid land, I have very clear memories of Jason and Bekah when they came to Kenya on a three-week short-term trip as Bethany freshmen. They were, unlike the farm at the beginning, green as green gets. They eventually returned to serve their Bethany internship under us in Kenya. They grew and matured in that time, coming back to serve full-time while I was the Field Leader in Kenya. They have served 10 years in this difficult desert region.

3. FRUITFULNESS: TREMENDOUS SPIRITUAL ADVANCE AND DISCIPLES MULTIPLYING

Likewise, I think of Sam who has been serving in Africa with his wife, Jonhild, and family for 24 years. After years of hard work, they are in the midst of their most fruitful years ever. They are now seeing African church planters going, not just to the Muslims of their country, but to the surrounding countries in the region. They are eager to receive a new team of American Global Interns to mentor and train. They also continue to pray that many will return as church planters alongside their African counterparts.

4. FATHERHOOD: MENTORING THE NEXT GENERATION

Lastly, I want to highlight Grayling and Sandra. With nearly 40 years of ministry experience in France, they are fully engaged in mission at a point when many people back "home" are well into retirement. This season is one of mentoring the next generation in the midst of an exceedingly unreached Mediterranean city, including both post-Christian French and pre-Christian Muslims. Their efforts are focused on mentoring the few young pastors in the city, while also mentoring Bethany interns. Their hope is to see the growth of students into long-term workers in France and the surrounding region.

Each stage of growth can look a little different from person to person and country to country. What all four teams share is that they have been doing the hard day-to-day work of "tilling the soil" for a number of years. Together, these teams represent 80 years of faithful ministry. They are a testament to the truth that, if we are faithful to plant the seed of the Gospel, God will do His part to make things grow.

Dan Germa – International Director at Bethany Gateways

Fruitfulness can and does occur at every stage of growth and development in missions. "I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the growth.

So neither he who plants nor he who waters is anything but only God who gives the growth.
